Web Site Diary Keeps Residents Informed

A leading Stafford Councillor has today re-launched his web-site. Councillor Barry Stamp, Liberal Democrat Leader on Stafford Borough Council has been operating a web site for some months but has now expanded the new look site to include an online diary so that local residents can see what he is doing on their behalf.

“Keeping local residents fully informed of what I’m doing as a Councillor is important. All too often the only time a Councillor is ever seen by his electorate is when an election is being held. I believe I owe it to those people who voted for me to keep them fully informed of what I am doing on their behalf. Over the past few months I’ve been developing a web site that does give local residents lots of information, but this has now been expanded to include an online diary section. Residents who log onto my site will not only be able to see what I do, but also what I think about many local and national issues. Residents can also use the web site e-mail links and feedback forms to contact me,” said Cllr Stamp.
